

Let's Talk It Over . . .

A Plea to All Fathers

By Arthur Dean, Sc. D.

Fathers should come home as cheerful as possible after a busy day. If we men try it, we will notice that every one in the family seems better spirited because of our cheerful home coming. Sit down and talk with your family. If you have a chance to speak to your boy alone, ask him about school; show him by your questions that you are really interested in his progress, know something about his friends, his outdoor recreations and his hobbies. Help him with something he is making in the cellar workshop. Give him a hand with that puzzle. Discuss with him the news events he cannot fully understand. Talk with him as you would to a man of your acquaintance. Kid stuff doesn't go over. A boy likes to be talked with, not "at."

Teach your son thoughtfulness. The two of you might occasionally put your heads together to plan some delightful surprise for mother. For example, plan a picnic for the family some time, you and your son preparing the luncheon, even packing it. When you notice mother is tired surprise her by taking away her apron, and then making her sit down while you and your son do the dishes.

Why They're Not Angels
A father should be, and often is, considered a hero by his son. Your son thinks of you in this favorable light, don't disillusion him. Make yourself a worthy example so that he will imitate the good in you and will not notice your shortcomings. And what greater tribute can a father and son pay to each other than to exchange confidences together?

ADVICE

Fathers should come home as cheerful as possible . . . talk with their families . . . cooperate with their children and . . . when possible . . . lessen the burden of their tired wives, says Arthur Dean in this article. Such commandments will bring Hossannas from wives . . . and will do much to develop confidence in the home.

P. S. This article is written as a penance after a family explosion in which I was the bomb, the match, and the big noise.

Supper was not ready in the evening after a bridge party, and no one in the family was hungry except father. The rest had filled up with sweets and sandwiches. The leaves had not been raked by the boy and were blowing all over the landscape. The house was hot and stuffy. There were many unwashed dishes in the kitchen. But why go on?

Oh yes, and I had in my pocket a nice rejection slip for an article over which I had labored for almost six months. All of which helps to show why fathers can't not always be angels and how easy it is for a columnist to write like an angel when there is nothing crossing him.

Are There Such Boys?

"You asked in your column, 'What do girls expect from boys?'"

"I don't expect a boy to keep company only with me, that is, not unless there is the thought of becoming engaged. But I would expect him to keep all dates made, except of course, if he became ill."

"I would like him to have a great interest in reading, music, and to stay in nights and just listen to the radio and talk, instead of wanting always to go out."

"School Girl."

Curing Forgetfulness

"My son, aged eight years, gets along well in school. But he always forgets to come in. How can I overcome his forgetfulness?"

"Mrs. S. G."

ANSWER: His mind is on one thing. It is due to concentration rather than absent-mindedness. Establish the habit of coming home by keeping him in one hour for every fifteen minutes he is late. Tell him flatly that you mean business. Stick to it for a week. Repeat until the habit disappears. Do not talk much about it. Just do it.

Ruling Clarifies Milk Licenses

A milk dealer living in unincorporated county area and selling milk in both a city and in county territory may be licensed by the county as well as by the city but one whose place of business is in the city and who sells outside the city may not be licensed by the county.

This opinion is one filed with County Manager Wayne Allen from County Counsel J. H. O'Connor following a request for it from the research division of the county manager's office. The opinion held, in other words, that a city license is good in the county if granted to a city dealer but a city license to a resident of the county, while good in the city is not good in the county.

TEST WELL SPUDDED IN

Dominguez Estates Fee No. 1 test well to explore the oil potentialities of the territory bordering Western avenue, north of the Columbia Steel plant, was spudded in today The Herald learned.

Following repeated delays due to inability to haul in heavy machinery and lay gas lines because of recent rains, the Boatright Drilling Company, contract-drillers of the well, have completed installation of all machinery, setting of four boilers, wiring of the derrick and every other requirement necessary to begin actual drilling operations the latter part of this week.

Good heavy equipment has been provided which will permit sinking the hole to the "base-ment" or schist if necessary to give the field a thorough test, although those identified with the project expect to encounter four different oil sands before touching bottom.

The well is being financed by the wealthy Dominguez Estates Company and is located 1,615 feet west of Western avenue and 825 feet east of the extension of Arlington avenue, or 455 feet north of 203rd street.

According to O. B. McDowell, whose perseverance for many years finally was rewarded by the Dominguez Estates Company agreeing to make the test, the well should prove up the entire 4983 Tract in which a number of local residents have holdings.

New Phone Book Is Big Town In Size, Style

Big-town in size and style, the new 1940 telephone books were delivered to subscribers in this area late last week. More than 21,400 "numbers" in Torrance, Lomita, San Pedro, Wilmington and Avalon received copies of the book that is due to become the most-thumbed publication in this area.

The new book of 136 pages, as compared to its nine-months old predecessor's 192 pages, is longer and wider, carries three columns of names to each page and, with more names to a page, should prove more convenient to telephone company officials state.

From Abacherl of 1528 255th street, Harbor City, has the honor of being No. 1 in the list of Lomita and Harbor City, subscribers, while the Torrance top spot is held by A Capital Venetian Blind company of 1601 Gramercy avenue. Last name in the Lomita portion of the book is Cecil O. Young of 1806 253rd, while the final listing in the whole directory is that of A. J. Zolnowsky of 1330 1/2 219th street, Torrance.

As usual, the Smiths lead with 12 in Lomita, 17 in Torrance. Next in name numbers are 10 Johnsons in Lomita, six Millers in Torrance.

There are 17 firms doing business under the name of the Lomita this-or-that (including The Lomita News, whose phone number is Lomita 84, by the way) and 41 Torrance listings.

Shortest name in the Lomita section is that of Carl B. Ek of 24316 Lucille street. In Torrance 213 phone subscribers must share that honor for brevity. They are: Ida Dora Alt, 1007 1/2 Portola; E. A. Day, 1323 Amarola; K. H. Day, 1415 West 225th; B. F. Dye, 1609 Cota; Mrs. Della Dye, 1508 1/2 Post; Harry H. Guy, 634 Sartori; William R. Lee, 1923 Amarola, and Pauline Ray, 2268 Torrance boulevard.
